1. Details of the Note Offer

1.1 The Note Offer

Overview of the Note Offer

The Note Offer under this Prospectus is for the issue of 600,000 Tranche 2 Notes to raise USD$600,000 before costs.

The Note Offer is only made to and capable of acceptance by the Investor.

The minimum subscription under the Note Offer is USD$600,000, which is also the maximum.

The Note Offer closes on the Closing Date (unless closed early or extended).

Background

On 20 December 2019, the Company announced to ASX that it had entered into a subscription agreement (Subscription Agreement) with Wingfield Capital Partners LLC (Wingfield) under which Wingfield agreed to subscribe (either itself or via a nominee) for an aggregate of 1,000,000 convertible notes at an issue price of USD$1 per convertible note to raise USD$1 million (before costs) (Capital Raising). Wingfield has nominated Wingfield Durban Deep, LP (Investor) as its nominee under the Capital Raising.

A summary of the terms of the Subscription Agreement was set out in Annexure B to the notice of general meeting of the Company released to ASX on 16 January 2020.

As noted in the announcement on 20 December 2019, the Capital Raising will be conducted across two tranches, the first of which has already been completed:

- USD$400,000 for issue of 400,000 Tranche 1 Notes (which were issued on 3 February 2020); and
- USD$600,000 for issue of 600,000 convertible notes (Tranche 2 Notes) (which are the subject of the Note Offer in this Prospectus). The Tranche 2 Notes are anticipated to be issued by 2 March 2020 (or earlier if the conditions for the issue of the Tranche 2 Notes described below have been satisfied).

Tranche 1 Notes and Tranche 2 Notes are collectively referred to in this Prospectus as the Notes.

The terms of the Notes are summarised in section 9.1. The conditions for the issue of each of the Tranche 2 Notes are set out below.

Wingfield has advised the Company in writing that the Investor is its nominee for the purposes of the Subscription Agreement. Accordingly, Tranche 1 Notes were issued to the Investor on 3 February 2020 (following receipt of USD$400,000) and the Investor will subscribe for and be issued the Tranche 2 Notes.

Conditions of issue of Tranche 2 Notes

The issue of the Tranche 2 Notes is subject to and conditional upon:

- Shareholders of the Company in a general meeting passing a resolution approving the issue of the Tranche 2 Notes to Wingfield (or its nominee). Shareholders passed this resolution at the general meeting of the Company held on 19 February 2020; and
- The Company lodging a prospectus for the issue of the Tranche 2 Notes.

Subject to satisfaction of the above conditions, the Company proposes issuing the Tranche 2 Notes following receipt of the USD$600,000 forming the subscription funds for the Tranche 2 Notes.

Interest

Notes accrue interest at 12% per annum at 12 monthly intervals from the date of issue of the relevant Notes. Interest for up to the first two years from issue of the relevant Notes may be capitalised at the election of the Company. Any interest capitalised as at conversion of the Notes is convertible at the same price as the Notes.

Number of shares to be issued on conversion of Notes

Conversion of Notes is subject to specific timeframes and events as described in section 9.1.

Notes convert at USD$0.007 (0.7 US cents) per Note. Shares issued upon conversion of Notes (if any) will have the same terms and rights as, and will rank equally with, the Company's existing listed fully paid ordinary shares.

The number of shares to be issued on conversion of Notes will be determined by:

- whether the Investor converts all, some or none of the Notes it holds;
- whether, at conversion, the gold price has increased above the gold price at the time of the issue of the Tranche 2 Notes (using the 5 business day average price per ounce of gold in US dollars as published by the World Gold Council prior to the relevant date in each case) as the face value of Notes is calibrated to, and increases upon, an increase of the gold price (refer to section 9.1 for further details); and
- whether the Company has paid or pays interest on the Notes for part or all of the first two years from issue of the relevant Notes in cash or if it is capitalised and paid by issuing shares (at the same conversion price as the Notes).

The full formula for calculating the number of shares issued on conversion of Notes is set out in Section 9.1.

Assuming the gold price has not increased and interest is paid in cash, a total of 85,714,286 shares would be issued if all of the Tranche 2 Notes are converted in full. This is the minimum number of shares to be issued if all Tranche 2 Notes convert.

If the gold price has increased, the face value of Tranche 2 Notes will increase to reflect the percentage amount by which the gold price has increased, up to a maximum of 30%. Assuming the gold price has increased by 30% and interest is paid in cash, a total of 111,428,571 shares would be issued if all of the Tranche 2 Notes are converted in full.

If all interest is capitalised for two years from issue of the Tranche 2 Notes (being the maximum period for which interest can be capitalised) and is paid by issuing shares at conversion of Tranche 2 Notes, and the gold price has increased by 30%, a total of 139,776,000 shares would be issued if all of the Tranche 2 Notes are converted in full. This is the maximum number of shares to be issued if all Tranche 2 Notes convert.

If the issue of shares on conversion of Notes would result in the Investor obtaining a relevant interest of more than 20% of the voting shares of the Company then, to the extent that the relevant interest of the Investor in the voting shares of the Company would exceed 20%, such Notes will not be converted.

Further details with respect to the potential number and dilutive impact of shares that may be issued on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes are set out in sections 4.1 and 4.2.

Redemption

The Notes become redeemable for cash upon the occurrence of an event of insolvency with respect to the Company or at the election of the Company on the occurrence of the disposal of its main undertaking. The Notes are not otherwise redeemable for cash. A break fee as described in section 9.1 is also payable if the Company elects to redeem the Notes on the occurrence of the disposal of its main undertaking.

The amount payable on redemption of Notes will be calculated in accordance with the same formula as the conversion of Notes (such formula being set out in full in section 9.1), except that the Investor will receive cash on redemption of Notes. This means that the face value plus capitalised interest will be paid in cash, unless the gold price has been increased (based on the 5 business day average as referred to above) in which case the amount repayable in cash will be increased by up to 30% in proportion to the increase in the gold price.

The Company has agreed to grant a general security over its assets to secure the payment of the redemption amount payable in cash if the Notes become redeemable.

1.2 Issues after Closing Date

The Board reserves the right to issue Tranche 2 Notes in response to a relevant application received after the Closing Date.

1.3 ASX Listing

Tranche 2 Notes offered under this Prospectus will not be quoted (listed). Official quotation of Tranche 2 Notes offered under this Prospectus is not being applied for and is not a condition of the Note Offer. It is expressly not stated or implied that permission will be sought for official quotation of Tranche 2 Notes, or that official quotation of the Tranche 2 Notes will be granted within three months or any other period after the date of this Prospectus.

The Company will apply to ASX for admission of shares issued upon conversion of Tranche 2 Notes to official quotation within the time required by the ASX Listing Rules. The fact that ASX may grant official quotation to such shares is not to be taken in any way as an indication of the merits of the Company or those securities.

2. Purpose of the Note Offer

The purpose of the Note Offer is to facilitate the issue of the Tranche 2 Notes to raise USD$600,000 before costs. Funds raised from issue of the Tranche 2 Notes will be applied to working capital to fund the ongoing operations of the Company and in particular the development of the Witwatersrand Basin Gold project in South Africa.

Funds raised from the Note Offer will also be used to meet the costs of the Note Offer, which is set out in section 4.4.

3. Effect of the Note Offer on the Company

The effect of the Note Offer on the Company will be to:

- increase the cash reserves of the Company as described in section 4.3; and
- to give rise to the Company having a liability for the Tranche 2 Notes as described in the pro-forma statement of financial position set out in section 4.3; and
- to vary the capital structure of the Company by increasing the number of convertible securities on issue by the number of Tranche 2 Notes as described in section 4.1.

4. Effect on the Capital Structure of the Company

4.1 Shares and Convertible Securities

The tables below set out the existing capital structure of the Company and the effect of the Note Offer on the capital structure of the Company.

SHARES

The issue of Tranche 2 Notes will not affect the shares on issue in the Company. The conversion of Tranche 2 Notes would vary the share capital of the Company.

Further details regarding conversion of Tranche 2 Notes are set out in sections 1.1 and 9.1.

For indicative purposes, the below table shows the breakdown of shares and the percentage shareholding of the Investor in the Company (rounded to two decimal places) following conversion of Tranche 2 Notes in the following cases (which are described in further detail in section 1.1):

(a) All Tranche 2 Notes convert, interest is paid in cash and no movement to the gold price. This is the minimum number of shares that may be issued on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes; or

(b) All Tranche 2 Notes convert, interest is paid in cash and the gold price increases by 30%; or

(c) All Tranche 2 Notes convert, interest is capitalised and paid in shares and the gold price increases by 30%. This is the maximum number of shares that may be issued on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes.

References to "cases" in the tables in sections 4.1 and 4.2 are to the cases set out in (a), (b) and (c) above. The below table show the impact of conversion of the Tranche 2 Notes only unless otherwise stated.

Case	Existing shares	Shares on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes	Total shares on issue following conversion of Tranche 2 Notes	% ownership of Investor of total shares on issue
(a)	937,531,000	85,714,286	1,023,245,286	7.93%
(b)	937,531,000	111,428,571	1,048,959,571	9.92%
(c)	937,531,000	139,776,000	1,077,307,000	11.94%

The above table assumes no other shares are issued before the Tranche 2 Notes convert. The Investor's percentage interest would be lower if other shares are issued before the conversion of the Tranche 2 Notes.

For indicative purposes, the below table shows the breakdown of shares on conversion of Tranche 1 Notes and Tranche 2 Notes in each of the cases:

Case	Existing shares	Shares on conversion of Tranche 1 Notes	Shares on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes	Shares on conversion of all Notes	Total shares on issue following conversion of all Notes	% ownership of Investor of conversion of all Notes
(a)	937,531,000	57,142,857	85,714,286	142,857,143	1,080,388,143	13.22%
(b)	937,531,000	74,285,714	111,428,571	185,714,286	1,123,245,285	16.53%
(c)	937,531,000	93,184,000	139,776,000	232,960,000	1,170,491,000	19.90%

The above table assumes no other shares are issued before all Tranche 1 Notes and Tranche 2 Notes convert. The Investor's percentage interest would be lower if other shares are issued before the conversion of the Trance 1 Notes and Tranche 2 Notes.

CONVERTIBLE NOTES

The Company currently has 400,000 Tranche 1 Notes on issue. If the Note Offer is successfully completed, the Company will issue 600,000 Tranche 2 Notes and will have a total of 1,000,000 Notes on issue.

4.2 Dilution and control

The issue of Tranche 2 Notes will not dilute existing shareholders of the Company. The percentage shareholding of existing shareholders will, however, be diluted if Tranche 2 Notes are converted to shares.

As noted above, the conversion of Tranche 2 Notes is subject to specific timeframes and events as described in section 9.1. In addition, the number of shares to be issued on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes is dependent on the specific circumstances (described in sections 1.1 and 4.1) of the Tranche 2 Notes being converted.

The Tranche 2 Notes will convert to shares except upon the occurrence of an event of insolvency with respect to the Company or at the election of the Company on the occurrence of the disposal of its main undertaking (providing the Investor has not first exercised a right to convert Tranche 2 Notes to shares in that circumstance), in which case Notes shall be redeemable. Examples of the number of shares that may be issued upon conversion of Tranche 2 Notes are set out in section 4.1.

For indicative purposes only, the below table sets out the dilutive impact to existing shareholders of the Company of the issue of shares upon conversion of Tranche 2 Notes in the cases described in section 4.1.

The below table does not consider the dilutive impact of the exercise of options or the conversion of performance rights.

5. Risks

The Tranche 2 Notes offered under this Prospectus are considered speculative. An investment in the Company carries risk. This section identifies circumstances the Directors regard as risks associated with investment in the Company and which may have a material adverse impact on the financial performance of the Company, if they were to arise.

Specifically:

- the Tranche 2 Notes are subject to specific risks (refer to section 5.1);
- the business, assets and operations of the Company are subject to specific risk factors that could influence the operating and financial performance of the Company in the future (refer Section 5.2); and
- there are general investment and market risks (refer Section 5.3).

Where possible, the Directors aim to manage these risks by carefully planning the Company's activities and implementing risk control measures. However, some of the risks identified are highly unpredictable or are out of the control of the Company and the Company is therefore limited to the extent it can effectively manage them.

These risk factors are not intended to be an exhaustive list of risks to which the Company is, or will be, exposed.

5.1 Risks associated with the Note Offer

(a) Value of securities and share market conditions

The market price of the Company's securities are subject to varied and unpredictable influences on the market for equities in general and with respect to resources stocks in particular. Market conditions and lack of liquidity may affect the value of the Company's securities regardless of the performance of the Company.

There is also a risk that the share price may not exceed the conversion price of Tranche 2 Notes prior to the expiry date of Tranche 2 Notes.

(b) Taxation consequences

The issue and redemption or conversion of Tranche 2 Notes may have taxation consequences depending on the particular circumstances of the recipient.

(c) Dilution

The issue of Tranche 2 Notes will not result in the holdings of existing shareholders being diluted, however the issue of shares on conversion of Tranche 2 Notes will dilute existing shareholders.

5.2 Company Specific Risks

(a) Mining and exploration risk

The Company conducts mineral exploration activities in both South Africa and Australia. The Company also previously operated in Indonesia however these prior operations have effectively ceased.

The business of mineral exploration, development and production is subject to significant exploration and development risks. The success of the Company depends on its ability to successfully develop resources and manage its operations. Whilst the Company has identified a resource that it intends to commercialise, there is a risk that the Company may not be able to undertake economically viable production on the resource.

The Company's capacity to proceed to develop a mine in respect of this resource will be dependent upon a number of factors. These factors include obtaining approvals from all relevant authorities and parties, seasonal weather issues, construction issues, cost overruns, plant and equipment availability, skilled consultants and labour availability, funding needs and other matters, all of which may create risks.

The development of a mine may also be subject to the terms of arrangements between the Company and third parties, including but not limited to access rights and agreements.

Although the Company currently intends to continue to pursue the exploration and commercialisation of the areas comprising the projects it holds, the Company may in future determine not to proceed with a portion, or the entirety, of the area covered by one or more of the interests forming its projects. This determination is dependent on the circumstances of the Company at the time, including but not limited to the costs and administrative burden of maintaining an interest (including meeting the conditions imposed), the results of exploration on an interest and the working capital requirements of the Company. The Company may also decide to pursue new exploration projects which, in addition to the general exploration, access and tenure risks set out herein, may carry specific risks which are inherent to the particular project and/or project location.

(b) Exploration and Tenement interests

The Company's exploration activities are dependent upon the grant and maintenance of appropriate authorisations including grants, licences, permits, consents, access arrangements and regulatory authorisations, which may not be granted or may be withdrawn or made subject to limitations. Renewals and transfers may be affected by completing remediation obligations or allocating responsibility for environmental liabilities.

As at the date of this Prospectus, the Company holds one granted exploration tenement at Mt Cecelia in Western Australia and has filed an application for a mining right that is under consideration by the mining regulator in South Africa. The Company also holds an 80% interest in three small mining leases in Western Australia, known as Tambina, which are subject to a farm in arrangement with a third party.

With respect to its application for a mining right in South Africa, while the Company believes its application complies with applicable law and regulations, there is the possibility the South African mining regulator will take a different view and not grant the application. There is also a risk that, even if the application is granted, a third party will object to grant of the application. In the case of an objection the Company would be required to defend the grant of the application and there can be no guarantee of success in such a proceeding.

The interests of the Company in its projects are governed by mining legislation, regulations and conditions imposed by the relevant legislature. Each interest is subject to annual expenditure and reporting obligations. Interests are typically granted for fixed terms and renewal or extension is subject to regulatory approval, which depends in part upon historical and ongoing compliance with conditions and relevant law. Failure to meet these requirements may result in loss of one or more interests in a project.

The Company may in future be required to surrender a portion or all of its interests in a project, whether in connection with a renewal or extension of an interest or otherwise. There is the risk that such surrendered interest may contain a yet to be discovered mineral deposit.

(c) Environmental risks

The operations of the Company have historically been, and will in future be subject to, extensive environmental laws and regulations. The Company uses and will continue to use all reasonable endeavours to comply with the environmental, legal and regulatory requirements, however, these laws are complex and there is a risk of inadvertent non-compliance by the Company.

The activities of the Company impact upon the environment and it is anticipated that any advanced exploration or mine development will impact the environment further. There is a risk that any mining operation undertaken by the Company may create environmental risks, particularly with respect to environmental damage through construction activities, disposal of waste products and/or water contamination. Such occurrences could delay production or increase costs of operations.

Natural events such as excessive rainfall, floods, storms or bushfire could adversely affect the Company's ongoing compliance with environmental laws and regulations. Breaches of environmental legal and regulatory requirements may result in fines, damages, clean-up costs and other penalties against the Company.

The Company will also be required to rehabilitate the environment in respect of the damage its activities cause (if any) and/or to complete rehabilitation programs contracted to be undertaken with or on behalf of third parties. There is risk that the quantum of funds to be expended on such rehabilitation works may exceed the funds the Company anticipated would be required or generated by the relevant activity or program, or has available at the time payment is required. There is also a risk that the historical operations of the Company have incurred liabilities with respect to rehabilitation works.

The Company will, where applicable, establish rehabilitation funds in compliance with legislation.

(d) Future requirements for capital

The Company may in future require additional funding to carry out its planned and future activities on its projects. The Company may also incur unexpected costs in implementing its existing and future exploration and/or development plans, including engaging contractors to undertake specific activities and meeting regulatory costs and requirements in connection with its projects.

There can be no guarantee that, if required, further financing will be available on commercially acceptable terms, or at all. Any additional financing through equity issues would be dependent upon the ability of the Company to raise funds in the securities market, which in turn is dependent on there being sufficient identifiable appetite from investors for equity in the Company. Such equity issues, if successfully conducted, would also be dilutive to current equity holdings in the Company. Furthermore, debt financing may not be available to support the scope and extent of proposed activities of the Company.

While the Company will seek further funding as and when required, ultimately access to such funding or lack thereof may require the Company to scale back its operations, including allowing the lapse of one or more of its projects and/or the postponement, or abandonment, of one or more of its projects.

(e) Foreign Country specific risks

The Company is subject to country-specific risks associated with its operations in South Africa.

The Company's ability to carry on business in the normal course may be adversely affected by considerations associated with economic, social or political instability, changes in regulatory regimes affecting foreign ownership, government participation or working conditions, exchange rate fluctuations, and/or changes to mining licensing and regulatory regimes. Political, economic and social conditions including potential social unrest, widespread adverse health conditions or events, and occupation of sites by squatters and/or illegal or artisanal miners in South Africa could affect and may in the future affect the Company's activities.

In addition, the Company's ability to successfully develop, commence and undertake production (if achieved) and to realise opportunities commercially will depend on robust transport and service infrastructure and availability of labour. Material delays in the transportation of equipment, supplies or resources or the lack of availability of reliable and adequately skilled labour may have an adverse effect on the Company's business and financial condition.

Law enforcement systems in South Africa are not necessarily as well developed, accessible or reliable as Australian equivalents. The Company will be reliant upon the ability to obtain appropriate court and/or administrative orders, and the enforcement of those orders, for the operation of its activities. This may include orders to enforce the exclusion of third parties from areas in which it has exclusive rights.

Government administration processes can occasionally be unreliable and prone to error or maladministration. The Company has already taken action to successfully overturn decisions made at a bureaucratic level which impinged on its rights and interests. At various times the Company has and it may again have reason to dispute decisions made by taxation authorities regarding the application of consumption tax levies and/or entitlements to rebates on tax paid, or other taxation matters. The Company seeks to mitigate the risks in these areas by taking appropriate professional advice and acting in accordance with same however there can be no guarantee that this will eliminate the prospect for disputes especially where sometimes complex matters are evaluated at bureaucratic levels where professional standards may be lacking.

Law enforcement forces are also a key part of the Company obtaining safe and reliable access and continued use of its project sites. It may be necessary for the Company to withdraw from sites or to suspend operations either temporarily or permanently if law enforcement forces are unable to achieve or maintain access and security, if third parties are unable to be removed from sites or access to sites by third parties may make sites unsafe. The Company may decide to withdraw from a project if its assessment is that safe and secure access, occupation and operations cannot be obtained or maintained reasonably, reliably and economically. A variety of social, political and institutional factors beyond the control of the Company, or which the Company is only able to influence in a limited fashion, may affect these matters.

The Company must interact with local landowners and occupants in South Africa to enable orderly and timely conduct of its exploration and other activities. Whilst local laws regarding mineral rights ensure a legal framework within which to ensure landowners provide access, the negotiation and formalisation of specific access arrangements can be sometimes difficult and complex. Whilst the Company believes it has adequate arrangements in place with local landowners and occupiers there can be no guarantee these arrangements will continue on a satisfactory basis, if at all.

(f) Lack of production, income or dividends

The Company has a limited history of generating returns from its activities. There is no certainty that production may start or income be generated at any particular time or at all, or that production or the levels of revenue (if achieved) will be profitable.

The Directors cannot give any assurance concerning the extent and timing of future dividends (if any) as this will depend on the future profitability and financial position of the Company as well as other economic factors. It is not envisaged that dividends will be paid on the Company's increased capital in the foreseeable future.

(g) Third Party Risks

The Company (and its group entities) have contracted with, or will in the future need to contract with, various parties to enable the implementation of its exploration plans on its projects. Such counterparties include service contractors, consultants, suppliers and landowners.

There is a risk that counterparties may fail to perform their obligations under existing or future agreements. This could lead to delays, increase in costs, disputes and even litigation. All these factors could negatively affect the Company's operations and there can be no assurance the Company would be successful in seeking remedies or enforcement of its rights through legal actions.

The laws of South Africa mandate various levels of participation by local or particular categories of persons or minimum local ownership levels. The ownership structures of the Company's South African project meet these requirements. The ability of the Company to conduct its activities depends on the Company continuing to maintain the interests of persons or entities which meet the applicable criteria.

(h) Reliance on Key Management

The responsibility of overseeing the day-to-day operations and the strategic management of the Company depends substantially on its senior management and directors. There can be no assurance there will be no detrimental impact on the performance of the Company or its growth potential if one or more of these senior managers or directors cease their employment with the Company and suitable replacements are not identified and engaged in a timely manner.

(i) Change in strategy

The Company seeks to identify desirable opportunities from time to time. Accordingly, the plans and strategies of the Company may evolve such that the existing operations of the Company may change. Such change could include, amongst other matters, acceleration of the development of one or more of the projects of the Company, the acquisition of one or more projects or the disposal of one or more of the existing projects of the Company.

As a result, the current strategies, approaches and plans may not reflect the strategies, approaches and plans of the Company at a later date. Any such changes have the potential to expose the Company to heightened or additional risks.

5.3 General Risks

(a) Economic Risks

General economic conditions, movements in interest and inflation rates and currency exchange rates may adversely affect the Company's activities, as well as its ability to fund those activities. Further, share market conditions may affect the value of the Company's securities regardless of the Company's operating performance. Share market conditions are affected by many factors such as:

- general economic outlook;
- interest rates and inflation rates;
- currency fluctuations;
- changes in investor sentiment toward particular market sectors;
- international trade disputes and sanctions
- political instability and civil unrest
- restricted access to trade routes
- the demand for, and supply of, capital; and

- terrorism or other hostilities.

(b) Regulatory Risks

The Company's activities could be adversely affected by changes to laws such as the impact of taxes and charges, increasing requirements relating to regulatory and environmental matters and changes to mining or exploration rights granted under legislation. The Company could also be adversely affected by changes to laws regarding native title and heritage matters, employee relations, health and worker safety, protection of endangered and protected species and other matters. Failure to comply with applicable laws or permit conditions could result in fines, penalties or other sanctions including suspension or forfeiture of rights.

(c) Litigation Risks

The Company is exposed to possible litigation risks including contractual disputes, occupational health and safety claims and employee claims. Further, the Company may be involved in disputes with other parties in the future which may result in litigation. Any such claim or dispute if proven, may impact adversely on the Company's operations, financial performance and financial position.

(d) Commodity price volatility and exchange rate risks

If the Company achieves successes leading to mineral production, the revenue it may derive through the sale of commodities exposes the potential income of the Company to commodity price (especially gold) and exchange rate risks. Commodity prices fluctuate and are affected by many factors beyond the control of the Company. Such factors include supply and demand fluctuations for precious and base metals, technological advancements, forward selling activities and other macro-economic factors.

Furthermore, international prices of various commodities are denominated in United States dollars, whereas the income and expenditure of the Company are in South African Rand and Australian dollars. The Company reports its accounts in Australian currency. These factors expose the Company to the fluctuations and volatility of the rate of exchange between the United States dollar, the South African Rand and the Australian dollar as determined in international markets.

5.4 Investment Speculative

The above list of risk factors ought not to be taken as exhaustive of the risks faced by the Company or in connection with an investment in the Company. The above risk factors, and other risk factors not specifically referred to above, may materially affect the future financial performance of the Company and the value of the securities offered under this Prospectus.

Shares issued upon conversion of Tranche 2 Notes carry no guarantee with respect to the payment of dividends, returns of capital or market value. The Company does not expect to declare any dividends for the foreseeable future. Applicants should consider investment in the Company is speculative.

Section 713 of the Corporations Act enables a company to issue a special prospectus where the securities under that prospectus are continuously quoted securities, or option over continuously quoted securities, within the meaning of the Corporations Act. This generally means that the relevant securities are in a class of securities, or options over a class of securities, that were quoted enhanced disclosure securities at all times during the 3 months before the date of this Prospectus and other requirements relating to the Company not being subject to various exemptions and orders under the Corporations Act within the last 12 months are met.

In summary, special prospectuses are required to contain information in relation to the effect of the offer of securities on the company and the rights and liabilities attaching to the securities. It is not necessary to include general information in relation to all of the assets and liabilities, financial position, profits and losses or prospects of the issuing company. Accordingly, this Prospectus does not contain the same level of disclosure as a prospectus of an unlisted company or an initial public offering prospectus.

Having taken such precautions and having made such enquiries as are reasonable, the Company believes that it has complied with the general and specific requirements of ASX as applicable from time to time throughout

(a) has been excluded from a continuous disclosure notice in accordance with the ASX Listing Rules; and

(b) is information that investors and their professional advisors would reasonably require for the purpose of making an informed assessment of:

- the assets and liabilities, financial position and performance, profit and losses and prospects of the Company; and
- the rights and liabilities attaching to the securities being offered.

The Company operates an ongoing business and reports regularly on its activities. The Company from time to time seeks to engage in discussions on an ongoing basis in respect of potential opportunities, including the opportunities to engage individuals and consultants that it views as having skills and experience beneficial to its activities. Funds may be used to fund the costs associated with identifying, investigating and pursuing such opportunities. The Company may also seek to raise funds from time to time. 9. Terms of securities offered under this Prospectus

9.1 Terms of Tranche 2 Notes

The terms of the Tranche 2 Notes are summarised below. References in this section 9.1 to "Notes" are to the Tranche 2 Notes:

Face value: Notes have a face value of USD$1.00 each.

Term: Notes have an initial term of three (3) years from issue of the Tranche 2 Notes, which may be extended twice for one (1) year (maximum two (2) year extension) by the Investor electing in writing to extend the term not less than thirty (30) days prior to expiry of the then applicable term.

Interest: Notes accrue interest at 12% per annum accruing 12 monthly from the date of issue in arrears and which may be capitalised into the face value of Notes for up to the first two (2) years of the election of the Company.

Conversion: Notes are convertible to fully paid ordinary shares at USD $0.007 (0.7 US cents) per share. The number of shares to be issued on conversion is to be determined by dividing the Aggregate Face Value (described below) by the conversion price of USD$0.007 (0.7 US cents).

Notes are convertible to shares as described below:

(a) At the election of the Investor for a period of fourteen (14) days after the elapse of each six (6) month period from the issue of Tranche 1 Notes during the then applicable term. The Investor may convert all or a proportion of the Notes they hold in any such fourteen (14) day interval at its discretion;

(b) At the expiry of the then applicable term, any Notes not previously converted will automatically convert to shares on the date of the expiry of the term; or

(c) At the election of the Investor upon the Company entering a binding agreement in relation to the disposal by the Company of its main undertaking.

Fractional entitlements to shares on conversion of Notes shall be rounded up. Fractional entitlements only arise in respect of the aggregate number of Notes being converted and not on a per Note basis.

Redemption: Notes are redeemable as described below:

(a) on the occurrence of an event of insolvency with respect to the Company which shall be deemed to occur upon the appointment of a liquidator, receiver, administrator or other form of external controller. The Aggregate Face Value will become payable as a debt to the Investor, with such payment being secured as provided for below; or

(b) on the Company giving written notice to the Investor of its election to effect a redemption on all the extant Notes on the occurrence of the disposal of its main undertaking to the extent the Investor has not elected to convert the Notes it holds. The amount payable upon the Company electing to redeem in this instance is the addition of the Aggregate Face Value and a break fee. The break fee will be the amount agreed between the Investor and the Company acting reasonably to represent fair compensation to the Investor for early termination of the Notes or failing agreement as determined by an independent expert.

Formula for calculating the Aggregate Face Value: The Aggregate Face Value is to be calculated in accordance with the following formula:

$$AFV = (FV + I) \times (GP \div BGP)$$

Where:

"AFV" is the Aggregate Face Value to be calculated.

"FV" is the total face value of the Notes in US$ being converted or redeemed (being US$1.00 multiplied by the number of Notes being converted or redeemed).

"I" is the interest in US$ accrued and unpaid on the relevant Notes as at the date for the calculation.

"GP" is the gold price per oz in US$ calculated by reference to that published by the World Gold Council and averaged for five (5) business days prior to the relevant date of the calculation.

"BGP" is the gold price per oz in US$ (being the base gold price) calculated by reference to that published by the World Gold Council and averaged for five (5) business days prior to the issue of the T1 Notes.

If the calculation of (GP ÷ BGP) is a fraction less than 1 then it shall be deemed to be 1 and if the calculation of (GP ÷ BGP) exceeds 1.3 then it shall be deemed to be 1.3.

Security: The Company will execute a general security deed to secure the rights of the Investor to payment to it as a debt in priority to other creditors of the Aggregate Face Value upon the Notes becoming redeemable.

Discharge: the Company is immediately discharged and released from its liabilities, obligations and covenants in respect of the Notes upon the conversion or redemption of such Notes.

General: the Notes otherwise contain terms typical for securities of a similar kind, include provisions with respect to the service of Notices, severance and the laws of Victoria governing the terms of the Notes.

The Note Offer under this Prospectus and any application concerning the issue of Tranche 2 Notes under this Prospectus shall be governed and construed in accordance with the laws in the State of Victoria, Australia.
