  In Q3 2025, RentGuarantor announced a brand ambassador partnership with barrister, broadcaster and author Rob Rinder MBE, which will help the Company to expand its reach and further deliver on its mission to inform tenants about professional guarantors as a potential solution to help secure rented accommodation, whilst also outlining the surety benefits for landlords.

- Attendance at industry and investor conferences

  RentGuarantor attended four industry and investor events during the Quarter, helping to increase the visibility of the Company amongst key stakeholders.

Paul Foy, CEO of RentGuarantor, said: "Q3 2025 will go down as one of the most significant periods for RentGuarantor to date. The Quarter was dominated by our admission to AIM - the culmination of many months of hard work and a key strategic milestone in the Company's plans. It was a pleasure to celebrate this historic day with our brilliant team, long-standing shareholders, and team of advisers, who have collectively helped set the Company up for future growth.

During the Quarter, we also announced our brand ambassador partnership with Rob Rinder, a high-profile public figure and legal expert who will help us drive consumer and landlord education surrounding the important role of guarantors.

Our positive engagement with a number of industry groups has continued, having onboarded 52 new lettings agents, charities, councils and universities - helping their clients access our professional guarantor solution. This was supported by our attendance at four industry conferences, whereby we expanded our network and further built on our leading position within the sector.

Whilst my eye is firmly set on the future of RentGuarantor, it's also important to draw attention to the growth we have already achieved to date; in Q3, revenue increased by 92.4% year-on-year, and further achievements were highlighted in our record interim results.

As we near the end of the year, I look forward to keeping you updated with our progress."
