Derewo River Update

West Wits Mining Limited (ASX: WWI) ("the Company" or "West Wits") has received reports that equipment at its Derewo River alluvial project in Papua Province, Indonesia has been damaged. There are no reports of injury to any persons.

The Company has been advised that local police are conducting an investigation into the matter and have already undertaken a visit to the site. The investigation is ongoing and is not expected to be concluded until at least the end of this week. At the time of this offence operations had been suspended for the Christmas New Year break.

At this point the extent of the damage is unknown however the excavator is currently inoperable. Arrangements are being made for mechanics to travel to site to assess the damage but there will now be a delay to commissioning of the alluvial circuit as planned.

The Company plans to meet with its Indonesian partner as soon as possible to review this incident and its impact on operations. We expect to be in a position to provide further updates on the situation following that review.
