Decidr & CareerOne partnership update

Live Verdure Ltd (ASX: LV1) ("LV1", "Live Verdure" or "the Company"), via its majority-owned AI enablement platform Decidr.ai Pty Ltd ("Decidr") is pleased to announce that Decidr partner CareerOne has successfully released ApplyPass, a direct-to-business candidate matching tool using Decidr technology and has begun generating partnership revenues. ApplyPass technology will serve as the matching core technology for the upcoming co-created AI Recruiter Agent 'C1AI' which is due for release in the June 2025 quarter.

Highlights

- The first AI product from the Decidr and CareerOne partnership is capturing revenue from CareerOne Clients.
- CareerOne partnership continues to accelerate, with partnership revenues being captured ahead of schedule. Decidr-powered co-created products are showing positive results with a 65% increase in jobseeker platform onboards and a 8x greater applicant-to-employer match rate.
- CareerOne set to launch an upgraded AI-driven hiring platform in April 2025, featuring Decidr-enabled AI Talent Agent for jobseekers and an AI Recruiter for employers.

CareerOne Partnership Update

Pre-launch beta capturing revenue from CareerOne clients

Decidr's partnership with CareerOne continues to gain traction, with new platform releases and AI-enabled features driving new product adoption. LV1 is pleased to advise that initial revenues have been generated from the partnership agreement. With CareerOne's new hiring portal release, clients can now experience a new feature called "Matching 2.0". This improved matching is a product of the Decidr partnership and falls under the umbrella of co-created products.

Although in beta, co-created products with CareerOne are showing promising results:

- Employer Adoption Growth: The number of eligible employers who are being matched to new candidates has increased by 65% over the prior six-month average.

- Job Seeker Engagement: Candidate applications through Decidr/CareerOne-powered job-matching AI has increased 8x as compared to traditional application processes.

In both metrics, Decidr/CareerOne AI technology is demonstrating superior interpretation and nuanced understanding of employer and job seeker attributes, skills and job requirements than the classic job board approach. With over 500,000 applications processed through the technology, AI match intelligence for both job seekers and employers continues to improve. The initial uptake and revenue generation has been faster and larger than initially expected by both CareerOne and Decidr.

Moussa Namini, COO of CareerOne, stated:
“Our partnership with Decidr is already delivering tangible results, with AI-powered job matching and hiring tools seeing promising adoption. The momentum we’re building highlights the demand for smart recruitment solutions, and we expect continued growth as we launch our enhanced platform.”

David Brudenell, Executive Chairman, commented:

”Since first engaging, CareerOne and Decidr teams have worked exceptionally well together, hitting every partnership and product milestone goal to date. To have revenue capture from customers in our beta release is highly promising, demonstrating the potential of AI’s impact in the job board and recruitment industries and the readiness of employers to adopt new ways of making the hiring process better.”

Outlook

Decidr’s strategic partnerships with CareerOne, ELMO, The Growth Faculty and others reinforce its position as a leader in AI-driven workforce enablement, aligning with LV1’s broader AI strategy. The Company remains focused on executing its Agentic Web vision, expanding AI-powered solutions across HR, recruitment, corporate learning and other industries..

LV1 looks forward to updating shareholders on further developments as Decidr continues to scale its AI partnerships.
