Inventor and Founder Returns – Interview Tim McGowen

Following the ASX announcement on 4th February, ION Strengthens Board of Directors -Inventor and Founder Returns, Finbar O'Hanlon was interviewed by Tim McGowen from InvestAir to outline the reasons as to why he returned and the significant market opportunity that has created an unprecedented demand for ION's technology.

Mr O'Hanlon highlights that AI has become the catalyst for a fundamental structural problem; video infrastructure was designed for a static, created once and distributed to many model, yet intelligent systems require dynamic, programmable data. With over 700,000 video files uploaded daily to YouTube alone, the challenge is not content access but relevance. ION's technology addresses this gap by virtualising video as programmable data, enabling intelligent systems to compose and personalise content at scale.
